MARCH

Blood Power

Do you know the signs?

Many do not fully understand the dangers of Blood Power and fewer still have experienced them.

As children our families taught us to hide our names, they taught us about tears of blood but are we really prepared to protect ourselves?

Could you be sure your family is safe?

In the last year Blood related attacks have risen 60%.

There are many who are thankful for the presence of the Templars, while others condemn them, claiming that these former Blood users as lures for the very thing they claim to hunt.

Should we really be looking outside sources?

Here are the top 5 warning signs of a Blood User:

1. Wraiths

We don't really know what the connection here is but it remains a consistent factor.

2. Tears of Blood

It is understood that this is an advance sign of a user.

3. Fits of Aggression or Uncontrolled Behavior

This can also be a sign of Corpse fever or possession, all of these being equally dangerous.

4. Secrecy

Users like to keep their practices private unless their intent is to Murder you. Be wary of all suspicious behavior.

5. Strange Obsessions

Usually a trait associated with a loss of will or lack of individual focus.

All of these things can indicate a cry for help, don't let it be yours.

Know the signs of WTFSS and report any activity.

Together we can build a safer tomorrow.

The Man Behind the Mask

Should we be afraid?

Did you Hear?

Nobodies saying it but we are all thinking it, we're alone out here. Word is the Resistance hasn't heard back from the South.

Jester isn't dead! In fact he's building up to remove the Resistance once and for all. His lowers are abandoning him in case the Resistance decides they are a threat. Everyone's just waiting, Jester isn't going to go nicely.

Some crazy Blood Witch has been seen a lot lately. Mostly she keeps to herself but its making people nervous. Blood leaks from her eyes and the kids are having nightmares. Wish she'd find who she's looking for and move on.

A Resistance Recruit got himself put on the Templars wanted list. Heard he licked a corpse!

Recruits have been popping up all over the North, don't they know weaving is just asking for trouble?

One might think that things are safer with the Resistance here, that we are living in a world where the threat of the U.C is nothing more than a bad dream.

This is a false truth.

Some know that we are on the verge of a war. The fact that no one will speak Jester's name only stresses the reality of the situation.

The Resistance have forced the Underground Carousel back into the shadows and although rumours state the games will recommence, it will no longer be their focus.

Survivors, we are stuck in the crossfire of a losing battle and choosing a side will only get you killed.

The Resistance has called the Overlord's wrath down on us.

If you want to live, take my advice. Hide your true colours and wait out the storm.

The North always prevails.

Screaming in the Night

It has been nearly year since the screams began but few can remember a time before them.

Word has spread throughout the territory of families and friends hearing multiple screams that lure them into the night. Are they just rumours? Are people really being claimed by this sound in the night?

Dr.Bic, a renowned mind surgeon has opened up a safe house for the fearful. Without windows and fully incased in sound proofing materials he has started treating patients for Screamaphobia, a fear of the scream.

So far treatments have been a success but no patients have been released and none have been admitted who have heard a second scream.

Should you hear a second scream you are advised to seek treatment immediately.
